

SUSTAINABLE TOURISM IN AMAZON

Mamirauá Reserve

The Mamirauá Sustainable Development Reserve had been the first unit of conservation this category implemented in Brazil. Location.

The Reserve Mamirauá Sustainable Development Reserve is located in the Amazon Region known as the Middle Solimões, at the confluence of the rivers Japurá and Solimões, the State of Amazonas, northern Brazil. The city of Tefé, in Amazonas state is the main gateway to the Reserve.

The Uakari Lodge is composed by seven floating structures made out of wood and covered with thatch. These structure float because were built on floating timber. They are all connected through floating runways. The Lodge was designed for minimum environmental impact, with appropriate technologies such as rainwater collection, solar power for lighting and water heating, and a sewage filtration system. The lodge has only 10 apartments with bathrooms and the capacity to accommodate in total 20 people at a time.

The lodge also has a central floating structure with reception area, restaurant, bar, TV room, library and conference room. We also have laundry services.

Among the activities the lodge offers are: trails, lake visits, observation of the local fauna and flora, and visit to local communities.
